Mother: Daughter unaware of plot

Katie Wolfmeyer

Friday at the trial

Under cross-examination, Katie Wolfmeyer maintained she didn't know anything about the murder-for-hire plot between former St. Louis Blues hockey player Mike Danton and "hit man"-turned-FBI informant Justin Levi Jones. Nancy Wolfmeyer testified about how she found out her daughter was in FBI custody. Testimony wrapped up and closing arguments are set to begin Monday.

Wolfmeyer's arrest disclosed by agent's call

EAST ST. LOUIS — Choking back sobs, Katie Wolfmeyer's mother took the stand Friday and told the jury how she learned her daughter was being held by federal agents.

Wolfmeyer had called her mother about 8 a.m. April 16 and told her she was spending the night with a friend and they were going to watch a volleyball game. An hour later, Nancy Wolfmeyer said she received a call from a federal agent.

"He said, 'We have your daughter,'" she said. "I didn't believe him because I had just talked to her, so I thought it was some kind of hoax. I told him, 'I need to talk to my girl.'"

After talking together briefly, mother and daughter didn't talk again until the next day when Nancy Wolfmeyer received a collect call from the Madison County Jail.

"I didn't call a lawyer because he told me that they were going to ask her some questions and they would be sending her home," she said.

Wolfmeyer was arrested April 15 after federal agents said she tried to arrange the murder of Danton's agent, David Frost, by putting Danton in touch with part-time police dispatcher Justin Levi Jones. Danton has admitted trying to hire Jones as a hit man for $10,000. Jones was acting as an informant for the FBI, and Frost

JUST LIKE OLD TIMES

Couple gets chance to attend the prom they never had

BY BRYAN FUELL

BELLEVILLE — After 58 years of marriage, three children and five grandchildren, June and Roy Frakes finally went to their senior prom Friday.

Roy, 78, stood tall with a red rose boutonniere pinned to the lapel of his custom-fitted blue tuxedo. June, 76, stood next to him, beautifully adorned in a long black evening gown with a white gardenia corsage on her wrist.

Their home at the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows Apartment Community was alive with memories as they prepared for the Senior Olympics Prom held Friday night in the dining hall.

The high school sweethearts vividly recalled the first time they laid eyes on one another back in 1940 in Whittier, Calif.

"The first time we met was at a high school Valentine's Day dance, where I was voted the "sweetheart" of the school," June said. "After the dance, he asked me out on a date ... and we have been in love ever since."

But any chance the couple had of being voted Kern River Valley School prom king and queen was lost when Roy, who had enlisted in the Navy, was sent to fight in World War II.

"The prom wasn't a big deal as it is for kids today," June said. "We were already making

Tipsters lead to 2 arrests

Suspects sought on several charges

Tips the St. Clair County sheriff's department received through an anonymous mail-in program resulted in the arrests Thursday of two fugitives.

Carlos L. Wilson, 20, had been on St. Clair County's Most Wanted list for a while, sought on charges of armed robbery, home invasion, drug trafficking and aggravated discharge of a firearm.

Gilbert C. Evans, 46, whose criminal record includes aggravated battery, theft and firearms violations, was wanted on a parole violation warrant from the Illinois Department of Corrections.

The two men were captured Thursday after the sheriff's department received information about them through its anonymous tips coupons, which were clipped from the newspapers and mailed in.

Wilson was captured about 5:30 a.m. Thursday at 1013 N. 72nd St. in Belleville by narcotics agents with the sheriff's department's Drug Tactical Unit and the Illinois State Police Tactical Response Team.

Suspect still at large in assault; police response questioned

Twenty-three minutes between 911 call and arrival

BY CAROLYN P. SMITH

EAST ST. LOUIS — Police are looking for the former boyfriend of a woman who told police he beat and raped her in her apartment in the Gompers Homes.

Police did not release the names of the victim or suspect.

Police received a call at 4:47 p.m. Thursday that was not dispatched until 5:09 p.m. However, East St. Louis Police Lt. Col. Lenzie Stewart said officers also arrived at Building 10 in the Gompers Homes at 5:09 p.m.

Stewart was not sure why it took the dispatcher 23 minutes to dispatch the call. He said an internal investigation is under way to determine a reason for the delay. The investigation will take about a week, he said.

Stewart gave this account of what happened Thursday night at the Gompers Homes:

A 43-year-old woman called 911 call for help, saying she was being beaten. She told the dispatcher there was man in her home.

When officers arrived, the suspect was not at the apartment. The woman told police her ex-boyfriend, a 47-year-old Alorton resident, had assaulted and raped her. Stewart said the couple had argued about a

Blue skies, light breeze greet Italian Fest

Aroma of ethnic cuisine is big drawing card

BY ELIZABETH DONALD

COLLINSVILLE — National colors were in full display on Main Street on Friday — red, white and green.

The 21st Italian Fest kicked off in downtown Collinsville with blue skies and sunshine, as community organizations set up their booths and the smells of Italian cuisine floated on the breeze.

"I ordered it," chairman Sandy Stammer said of the clear weather.

The event this year adds a third entertainment stage and two new attractions — Boxer Bots and the Xtreme Web high-jump.

But the top attraction for Italian Fest is the food. Three blocks of homemade offerings include salsiccia, Italian beef, toasted ravioli, bagna cauda, cannoli and many other dishes, including the perennial American fare of chicken, funnel cakes and corn dogs.

After several years away, the ladies of Ss. Peter and Paul Church have returned to Italian Fest with their famous homemade polenta — a cornmeal dish topped with Italian tomato sauce and sausage that they have specially made in advance of the festival.

"It's a lot of work to get it ready," said Judy Thompson. "I've been trying to get her back."

"Her" would be Esther Gherna, who came to the United States from Italy at the age of 15, and she knows polenta. Gherna
